

A concise paragraph describing your final project in my class in your own words, along with a short description of what you do now and how that dovetails with what NYU can provide you.

You are the best! Thank you! I'll have my SOP to you first thing Sunday morning. Here is the additional info you asked for :)

For my final project in your class I used stop motion software to create a video that dynamically led users through a data visualization that showed the geographical saturation of art created from Prehistory through Gothic in the Western World. Ex: Very little artwork was created in Libya, large quantities of art were created in Greece.

Here it is in GIF form:

This program is described as being “at the intersection of engineering and creative practice,” a space that I have found myself lingering in since creating my the project described above. It is also the a space that I have been working in as a Multimedia Producer at NBC where I merge creative concepts and ideas with programming to create compelling data-visualizations for editorial distribution. This program would provide me with the training and technical skills I need to advance to the next level in my career.
